The game was released in October 2017 and became No.1 on the worldwide chart. It was created with the goal of bringing an exciting new fantasy adventure, not typical of a fantasy RPG. The game provides spectacular graphics and features not seen in other games. © 2017 Tencent. All Rights Reserved. The province of Ontario is gearing up to create a Ontario Cannabis Retail Corp., with the goal of selling recreational marijuana in the province by the end of this year. That date is just around the corner, with cannabis retail store window openings planned for this fall, followed by provincial stores opening in mid-December. But according to the University of Guelph's Dr. Andrew Cotton, the province may have set a timeline that could have long-term consequences. In a tweet on Thursday, Cotton noted: "I think Ontario's timeline may have created a dilemma for municipalities. Will there be pressure to issue retail sales licenses as soon as possible, regardless of zoning issues?" CBC News reached out to the province for comment and received the following statement: "Earlier this summer, the Government of Ontario announced plans to legalize cannabis by July 1, 2018. The Cannabis Act, 2018 will allow adults in Ontario to legally purchase and consume cannabis. All locations will be privately owned and licensed." The province is currently drafting the act to set up the legal framework for the cannabis industry. One of the first steps in licensing will be the creation of the Ontario Cannabis Retail Corp. The corporation, to be created by legislation, will oversee the sale and distribution of recreational cannabis from government-owned Ontario Cannabis Store outlets across the province. According to the legislation, private companies are eligible to apply for a licence to sell cannabis at retail stores. Cotton said that while there should be little objection to private retailers selling cannabis, the issue will come down to whether municipalities have the right to zone out private retailers. He said existing cannabis retailers, which are allowed to operate up to a maximum of five physical outlets, may be grandfathered in because the government decided it wants to give them a head start, and there may not be room for all existing private retailers to apply for a licence. "In 2016, the city of Windsor, for example, changed their bylaws and zoning code to restrict [cannabis] stores, out of concern for the public safety of children, youth, and other vulnerable groups," Cotton said. "But,
