Share: Ritual Cosplay - Ritual Cosplay is the act of dressing up as a Disney character, usually a Disney Princess, for Halloween. Ritual cosplay has been around for a long time, but recently the Internet is abuzz with posts about whether or not it's actually killing the fandom. Is Ritual Cosplay Killing The Fandom? Is Ritual Cosplay Killing The Fandom? It's pretty clear that the Internet and Facebook is buzzing with Facebook posts about Ritual Cosplay. The posts, which are written by individuals who had a great time dressing up for Halloween, all have one thing in common: they are questioning the idea of dressing up as a Disney Princess. These people wonder if the large fan base of Disney Princesses is going to make them feel less of a fan of Disney. Is the last few years' of costume popularity going to make this trend continue? Will the constant need to dress up as a Disney Princess, no matter how cool the costume may be, get to the point where the fictional characters are actually taken more seriously? Is Ritual Cosplay Killing The Fandom? Is Ritual Cosplay Killing The Fandom? Looking back, I'm not really sure where this social trend came from. All we know is it's been going on for at least a few years. I couldn't find any statistics on the increase in the number of people dressing up as Disney Princesses, but my intuition tells me the main point is that this number has been steadily climbing. It seems that the increasing popularity of costumes is a little bit of a double-edged sword. There are so many people who enjoy dressing up as Disney Princesses, it's truly awesome. In many ways, the ritual of dressing up as a Disney Princess brings a sense of community and atmosphere to people. It's a time for people to dress up as a Disney

Good luck!Q: Select2 with multiple select boxes: Allow people to select one or more options on the first select box A bit of background first. Our software was built with some old code. In this old code, the second select box was set to multiple so people could type whatever they wanted. At the moment we have no need for this, so we have switched it to single. The issue is that we have another select box now that is meant to be for people to select which field they want to change the data in.

Because we are using a single select box the data is passed the second time as an array rather than an array of strings and Select2 always indicates that the data is not valid. I am able to get a workaround using jquery that makes it work in an easy way but the only way to do this is by adding the options to a select list on the second select box:

$("#field_select").select2({ tags: true, allowClear: true, multiple: true, placeholder: "please choose", width: '100%', maxWidth: '500px', close: function () { // do stuff } }); var selectList = $('#field_select')[0].options[0]; $('#field_select').change(function () { selectList.length = 0; for (var i = 0; i
