Int ZSSS. 21How to control the disease and prevent the spread of Ebola virus The World Health Organization (WHO) declared last week that the worst Ebola outbreak in history is over in Sierra Leone and Liberia, the countries affected. The report says that not a single case of Ebola has been recorded in Guinea for the third consecutive week. These historical declarations are meaningful as they give hope to the people of the affected countries to normalize their lives once again. However, the declarations of official clearance of the Ebola virus are premature as the conditions for normalization are far from being met. For many months, Sierra Leone and Liberia were veritable slums where the lives of the people were turned upside down. Public spaces, including schools, markets and churches were blocked. Policemen were on duty 24/7 to prevent people from entering any place where there was an Ebola patient. Heavily armed policemen were on guard at the entrance of every house to prevent any possible contact between family members. The normal life of the people of the affected countries was completely destroyed. The local population is used to coping with huge living expenses. Economic hardships, lack of basic necessities and drought have turned Sierra Leone and Liberia into countries stricken with poverty. Living in a poverty-stricken country does not mean that people will willingly accept that their standard of living should be reduced to the lowest level in the world. When they see the suffering of their immediate neighbors, they will not be willing to accept the situation anymore. In Sierra Leone, the virus was frequently transmitted between the people due to fear and image The following code applies a blur to an image. What I want to do now is apply a blur to only one row of the image. Can someone help me?

import cv2
import numpy as np
img = cv2.imread("Test.jpg")
dst = cv2.medianBlur(img,5)
cv2.imshow("dst", dst)

A: If you want to apply it only to one row, you could loop through every row of the image:

import cv2
img = cv2.imread("Test.jpg")
dst = cv2.medianBlur(img,5)
for i in range(img.shape[0]):
    dst = cv2.medianBlur(dst,5) cv2.imshow("dst"
